SELECTED BY THE
CHILDREN'S BOOK COMMITTEE
By Jon Scieszka
Inaugural National Ambassador for Young People’s Literature

If there were a riddle about the volume you are holding in your hands, it might go something like: What is gold, more than 100 years old, but also brand new?

It's more than 100 years old because that's how long the Children's Book Committee has been selecting The Best Children's Books of the Year. It's brand new because each list recommends the best of the new books published in the previous year. And it is gold because this collection is the gold standard of quality literature for children.

Bank Street has always championed good literature as the foundation of literacy, learning, and development at all levels of childhood education. And boy do we need this list.

As the first Ambassador for Young People's Literature, I have been given a Library of Congress medal, a really long title, and the mission to promote the best in children's books. I love the Children's Book Committee at Bank Street College of Education because they make my job so much easier. Watch how:

Looking for a good book to get a child you know interested in reading?

Read this.

Done. Wasn't that nice of them? Thanks, Bank Street!

I could go on about the hundreds of great titles carefully chosen by a group of very smart and dedicated people, the perfect and perfectly practical Tips for Parents, the incredibly useful organization by age and interest. But that's all pretty obvious. And it's all in the book.
So, thanks and congratulations all around. Thanks for making my Ambassador job easy. Congratulations on helping us answer the riddle: How do you get a child reading?

The Bank Street Best Children's Books of the Year.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

- Share your enjoyment of books with your child.
- Talk over your reading
- Continue to read aloud to your child even after he or she reads independently.
- Encourage your child to choose a book to read aloud to someone else.
- Broaden your child's horizons by helping to select from a wide range of subjects
- Encourage your child to read whatever he or she enjoys even if it appears to be too easy or too hard.
- Let your child see your enjoyment of your own reading
- Find time for your child to visit and browse in libraries and bookstores.

Looking for just the right children’s books?

Here—for parents, grandparents, relatives and friends, as well as for teachers and librarians—is the perfect guidebook. Each year, the Children’s Book Committee issues an annotated guide to more than 600 children’s books they consider the best publications of the prior year, in this case 2014.

The fiction listings are divided into sections by age and arranged by topic: adventure, animals, folk and fairy tales, growing up, mystery, science fiction, sports, and more. Another section lists information books and poetry titles, also arranged by topic.
